WALKER WALKED AWAY.

Sung by GEORGE FORMBY.

Written and Composed by

C. W. MURPHY & DAN LIPTON.

KEY G.

Walk - er's my old friend He's my bo - som friend— When trou - ble comes his way, Walk - er walks a - way. Up - on the day that he got wed, The par - son un - to Walk - er said, "This girl you'll che - rish till you die." He look'd at her, and for re - ply—

CHORUS.

Walk - er walk'd a - way, For he could - n't stay. Walk - er walk'd a - way, And he did - n't say 'Good day!' He left them in the lurch, Stand - ing in the church. With the fee un - paid, and the best bridesmaid, Walk - er walk'd a - way. Walk - er walk'd a - way.

2.

Walker joined the Line
 With a reg'ment fine. (Sym.)
 He marched behind the band,
 And he did look grand! (Sym.)
 One day afar they had to go
 To battle with a savage foe.
 Like hero bold he went to war,
 But when the enemy he saw—

CHORUS.

Walker walked away,
 For he couldn't stay. (Sym.)
 Walker walked away,
 Though he'd sworn that he'd obey.
 When bullets flew around,
 He was homeward bound. (Sym.)
 With a warlike thrill, and the canteen till,
 Walker walked away.

3.

Walker made a book—
 Yes, a betting-book— (Sym.)
 And on that Derby day
 Walker looked all gay. (Sym.)
 He stood upon a stool, you know,
 And shouted "Ten to one!" and so
 Lots of men gave him their "tin,"
 But when he saw the race begin—

CHORUS.

Walker walked away,
 For he couldn't stay. (Sym.)
 Walker walked away,
 'Cause he didn't want to pay.
 He got some silly fool
 To stand on his stool. (Sym.)
 At a frightful pace, with the crowd in chase,
 Walker walked away.

4.

Walker took a room—
 Yes, a front back-room. (Sym.)
 No matter where he stays,
 Walker never pays. (Sym.)
 He has his board and lodgings too,
 And never offers them a sou;
 But yesterday the landlord sent
 A bill upstairs for Walker's rent.

CHORUS.

Walker walked away,
 For he couldn't stay. (Sym.)
 Walker walked away,
 'Cause his rent he couldn't pay.
 He meant to do a "bunk,"
 So he packed his trunk. (Sym.)
 With his clothes, it's true, and the landlord's too,
 Walker walked away.
